VCM BUILDERS COMMISSIONED FOR ANOTHER FORT LAUDERDALE PROJECT
Venerable construction company dominating the high-end home market

FORT LAUDERDALE (July 30, 2015)—VCM Builders, one of South Florida’s premier construction companies, has added another custom waterfront project to its growing portfolio of Las Olas area commissions. The builder is starting construction on a 6,500 square-foot private residence at 301 Seven Isles Drive in Las Olas Isles neighborhood, with all the signature VCM features including state-of-the-art technology and a stunning pool area.

The homeowners chose VCM to build their “dream home” because they had seen the quality and styling of their neighbor’s home. The five-bedroom, five-bath residence sits on the waterfront and is being designed by Architect Randall Stofft who is imparting a tropical contemporary theme. Features include a media room, fireplace and exquisite master suite, chef’s kitchen, outdoor entertaining space.

“We are proud that our work is being recognized by the area’s residents, as much for the attention to detail as for our commitment to completing on time and within budget,” stated Alan S. Macken, principal of VCM Builders along with Andrew K. Verzura, who manages onsite construction. “In a market where several builders are established, VCM is making itself known as the premier choice for custom homebuilding.”

VCM Builders recently completed other nearby waterfront homes at 440 Royal Plaza Dr., 616 Solar Isle Dr., and 175 Fiesta Way. The former is now on the market for just over $5 Million and the latter two set a new bar in sales performance.

Also in the pre-construction phase are Macken Companies projects’ Parallel, a collection of townhomes in Colee Hammock right off Las Olas; and Beach House, four distinctive single-family homes on the barrier Island. Macken Companies also co-owns and are building Palmetto Gardens Plaza, a 63,000 square-foot shopping center with a Wal-Mart Neighborhood Store as its anchor, in Miami Gardens.
